From the Commercial Advertiser. There can be no Church without a Prelate.

SEVENTH LETTER TO DR. WAINWRIGHT. REV. AND DEAR SIR :- Were I disposed, I might easily show that from the very commencement of this discussion, my opponent has been busily employed in endeavoring to shift the ground of it, and to make an issue altogether different from that which presents itself to every unbiassed mind as the true one. I will not call the various movements, which he has made, evasive, captions or 'ungracious,' but will leave the reader to judge for himself, after a review of them. At the New England Dinner, under very extraordinary circumstances, you volunteer to maintain, upon a 'proper occasion,' that 'there can be no Church without a Prelate,' thus unchurching the great mass of Protestant Christendom. The 'proper occasion' is offered to you, by one who feels that his character and usefulness are publicly assailed by the above proposition. Instead of standing upon any question of mere technicalities, and contesting the points 'who is the challenger,' and 'who shall commence the discussion,' I ask from Dr. W. such a definition of his terms as will put the public in possession of his meaning, under his own hand and seal; but this under the cover of a technicality, is indignantly refused. The right to make this demand, though so obviously just, is also waived for the sake of reaching the merits of the question. Again, I proceed to redeem my pledge, and to show that the unchurching dogma, so offensively advanced, is at war with the spirit and the letter of the Word of God. My first argument is that "there is no warrant from Scripture, for making any particular external form of polity a condition of that Christian fellowship and communion with God, which are distinguishing duties and privileges of the Church of Christ." I give some proofs of this position, (see the close of the fifth letter,) and call upon Dr. W. to furnish-if he can-evidence to the country. The only reply made to the position is, not that it is untrue, but that I cannot con sistently assume it, because it is repugnant to the standards of the body to which I belong, which standards, with all the adroitness he can employ, my opponent strives to show are as exclusive and unchurching as his own dogma. Thus again is an attempt made to evade the real issue. Although not bound to make any reply to this, I consent to go out of my way to show that both fact and theory demonstrate conclusively that the Presbyterian Church, neither in its standards nor in its practice, gives the least plausible ground for this argumentum ad invidiam. To repeat what was said upon this point would be to repeat the whole letter. The sum of the argument was briefly this: that while-in common with the Churches upon the continent of Europe, the various families of the Presbyterian Church in this country, the Congregational Churches of New England, the Methodist and Baptist and other Churches of Christ-we maintain the necessity of a ministry, and an Apostolical ministry, divinely derived from Christ, in some way, through the Apostles; we do not maintain that such a ministry, in order to authenticate its title, must, of necessity, be derived through an unbroken succession of individuals. point to satisfy any reasonable mind that there is nothing inconsistent with the principles of my own communion in the argument which I submitted to you as long ago as the 16th of Januaanswer? Neither more nor less than another the process to which your previous letter was de-Now I ask, and many a reader has asked, whether this does not seem like trifling with the subject, and whether also, it does not evidence sopalable that nohody can mistake its design .-It is enough to say, that upon a proper occasion, I will hold myself ready to prove that all the quotations made from our standards, (one of which in particular is sadly misunderstood, besides being imperfectly given,) present not a single idea that is inconsistent with the perfect catholicity which I claim for them. And farther, as respects the facts to which I have appealed, I am fully prepared to prove how entirely you have misapprehended and misstated the actual relations that subsist between us and the various bodies of Christians, and especially between the two branches of the Presbyterian family, one of which you represent as "excommunicating" the other. It is quite enough to assure the reader that neither of these bodies so understands the matter, and that at the present moment moment their amicable relations illustrate the important truth, that there may be separation without schism, desty of your monopoly of the name and rights of just as the present distracted state of your own denomination illustrates the opposite truth, that there may be schism without separation.

All these points, I say, are capable of the most satisfactory adjustment, but this is not the place for it. For, to what purpose, unless it be to en- Protestant Episcopal' from your style and title. tangle the question before us with irrelevant matters, weary the patience of the reader, and avert . Dioceses of the Church of the United States. the dreadful issue-is all this hunting through the Presbyterian formularies? What even if you can prove, with the clearness of demonstration, that these formularies teach doctrines in regard to the ministry and sacrament, which are the same or akin to those you teach? What if you can convict me and all the Presbyterian body of the most palpable inconsistency with the principles of our own standards? I beg leave to ask whether this would refute in any wise the truth of the position I have taken in my fifth letter. I have said already that in this discussion I stand upon the ground common to all who acknowledge a ministry and ordinances. The question as to which of the forms of this ministry is most accordant with scripture teaching, and best fitted to secure the purity, efficiency, freedom and happiness of the Christian Church, is, in its place, an interesting question; but, I repeat, it is not the question before us. The question which is before us is, whether any one of the various forms of constituting the Church of Christ is essential to the very existence of that Church. To this question I again invite your attention, with the hope that you will see that my consistency or inconsistency has really nothing whatever to do with its settlement. As to the meaning of my own standards, I have no doubt that our readers will at once appreciate the justice of my claim to be considered as sound an interpreter of them as you can possibly be.—Besides which, did I need any farther argument to demonstrate that they do not take the arrogant ground of unchurching you or others who do not receive them, I find that argument in the acknowledged, the notorious fact that our practice is just what I described it, in my last letter. It is universally known that we do most cheerfully question before us. The question which is before is universally known that we do most cheerfully and in the emphatic language of facts, acknow. ledge the ministry and ordinances of other Christian Churches. I ask whether our practice be not the best exponent of our principles, and wheth.

the propriety and necessity of the ministry and ordinances of the Gospel. In this respect the ordinances of the Gospel. In this respect the denominations I have named stand upon common ground. They hold a ministry, an Apostolical mot selected from, for sale by BUTLER & MORRIS, ja25 1w* BUTLER & WORRIS, 48 Water street. ministry, and a divinely-appointed ministry.-

appointed is not, as I have already shown, made to depend upon the fact that it has come down to them in a regular, unbroken series of individuals, but upon the fact that it is substantially conformed to Apostolic practice, and that it is imbued with the Apostolic spirit. The call to it consists, primarily, in the possession of a sincere desire to advance the cause of evangelic truth and righteousness; secondly, in the possession of the requisite intellectual gifts and qualifications for this purpose; and thirdly, in the voice of the people, inviting the individual to exercise those qualifications in their behalf. Ordination is the public recognition of such an individual as the possessor of such a call, and does not invest him with any sacramental and mysterious virtues which he did not before possess. Every denomination, for the simple purpose of securing order, and preventing the intrusion among them of persons who give no proof of possessing such a call as the one just described, has made its own arrangements, as it has an undoubted right to do, provided its rules be in substantial and designed conformity with what they believe to be the principles and spirit of the Gospel. This is, in their sense of the words, lawful ordination, concerning which you say so much. If the reader of these letters wishes to see the subject fully and ably treated, I beg leave to recommend to his perusal the work of the present incumbent of the Archiepiscopal see of Dublin, Dr. Whately, entitled "The Kingdom of Christ." Enough now to repeat, that a succession of individuals, beginning with the Apostles and descending to the present times, does not, of itself, (as you affirm and as you are bound to prove.) make any set of functionaries an Apostolical or divinely appointed ministry, for reasons I gave in my last, and to which you have not replied .--Let us imagine the possibility that at the period when the Reformation shook the throne of the great spiritual despotism which had so long and stages for Easton and for Schooley's Mountain on the arrival wickedly usurped the holy name of the Catholic Church, not one of the prelates or priests of that vast incorpation of anti-Christian errors had come out of its bosom. Instead of a number of ordained priests, such as Luther, let us suppose some noble-hearted layman had had first lighted the flame of reform, and had gathered multitudes of Christians around the re-instated Word of God, would it not have been the right and duty of those believers to organize themselves as a Church of Jesus Christ, and to appoint and invest ministers to discharge ministerial duties for them? To deny this would be to say that that there is no remedy against essential error. You may reply that this is another extreme case, and that it should not be considered as establishing a rule; but it certainly establishes a principle, and that principle is the very one in debate, viz: that there may be, without a succession of individuals, a true, evangelic, divinely appointed and lawfully ordain. ed ministry of the Gospel. But I must refer the reader again to my last letter, as containing my views upon this point more at large, reserving farther and even more impressive considerations for the time when, abandoning all hope of farther evading the real issue, you shall have given your answer to my first Scriptural argument. Let me then, state the true issue, once more.

You have asserted-not merely that a ministry, and a divinely appointed ministry, is essential to Believing that I had said enough upon this the Church, but that it must be a prelatical minintry; so that without prelacy there is no Church, and of course (as I have shown and as your writers affirm,) a covenanted spiritual mercies and no warranted hope of Heaven. On the contrary ry, I awaited your answer. But what is that I have denied that any one particular way of sclecting and designating the persons who are to evasion of the real question. Instead of a manly fill the office is essential to the existence of the grappling with the true issue, your last commu- Church. This is my first answer to the unnication is entirely occupied in a repetition of churching dogma. I pray you then come to this point, without any further attempt to show that you understand Presbyterianism better than I do myself. Come to it boldly, and prove, if to take the morning and evening trains for Trenton and Philaituality of the Gospel to exalt, as you do, H Rail, is now in complete running order, and offers a commo dious and expeditious conveyance to and from New-York for an unwillingness upon your part to approach a matter of external order into an essenttial. the real merits of the question. You are Come to it, and explain why, if prelacy be a vital quite mistaken, if you have supposed that I am element in the Church of God, there has not been to be drawn aside by an expedient so often adopt- a uniformly divine and practical testimony given ed in controversy, but one which, in this case, is to it exclusively; so that none should be left in doubt that the blessing of God rested upon your ministrations only. Come to the point, and show (for you are bound to do so) that prelacy has invariably proved itself to be the only channel of spiritual benefits to mankind; that it alone has preserved the truth, and preached the truth, and exemplified the truth in the lives of its adherents; that it has promoted the peace and unity and purity of Christendom, so infinitely beyond any other system from which it has been discarded as to demonstrate, not only that it is right, but estimated to the control of the street of t to demonstrate, not only that it is right, but essential. In a word, come to the point, and prove that, like Gideon's fleece, the dews of the grace of Heaven have fallen only upon prelatical Rome, prelatical Austria, prelatical Russia, prelatical England and America, while the rest of Christendom is perishing in drought.

Prove these things, and your claims are estab. lished. We will then no longer question the mothe Christian Church. You may then call your comparatively contracted denomination The Church, and yourself, par excellence, Church. MEN. Nay, a prelate may propose, (as I understand one has actually done,) to drop the words and you may publish a list of your prelates in the In a word, prove that 'there can be a Church without a prelate,' and I pledge myself that we will one and all bring-what one of your number has called-our forged commissions, and lay them at

But until then be assured that your claims will be none the more readily conceded because they are loudly asserted; on the contrary, every open assault, like that which originated this discussion, will be met with promptness and repelled. If your hands are found to be against every man, do not wonder that every man's hand will be against you. Self-respect and the desire to maintain an unimpeached character as the basis of our usefulness, enjoin the duty of self-defence. Respectfully, your obedient servent, GEORGE POTTS.

The above caution, emanating from the "British College of Health, London," will be hailed with the weemest enthusiasm by the friends of the Hygeian System, inasmuch as it tends to expose and oppose the worthless counterfeits which have been extensively circulated by those who are as destitute of moral principle, as they are ignorant of the "healing art."
The invaluable medicines of the British College may be obtained in their original purity of several gentlemen who have taken agencies in several of the different States, whose names

I. K. PARK'S only true celebrated highly improved Manifold Letter Writer.—This article produces a Letter and Duplicate at the same time without the use of pen or ink—yet the resemblance is so near that it can scarcely be detected.

J. K. Park would refer his friends and the public generally to the New-York press, which teems with praise at the yest improvement he has made in the above article, and invites them to call and examine the extensive assortment he has on hand, and convince themselves of the utility and cheapness of the above article, which he sells 30 per cent. cheaper than can be bought elsewhere, at his Sovener than can be bought elsewhere.

be bought elsewhere, at his Stationery and Pateng Blank Book and Bank Ledger Depot, 37 John street, 3 doors below Nassau.

N. B.—This Writer is warranted to bear the change of any climate, and will neither smut nor rab off, at the same time having all the hair strokes of the pen.
